

Media Literacy: Media's role in politics and policy development

Discussion Leader:

Dr. John Splaine

Associate Professor Emeritus,
Education Policy & Leadership program
University of Maryland

Learn how the media has changed politics and tips for critically analyzing media messages so that voters can detect propaganda, bias and truth in messages leading up to the election.

The League of Women Voters believes political discourse can be frank and spirited, yet respectful of our differences.

The League of Women Voters of Greater Dayton Area invites you to participate in an important public discussion.

Monday

October 8, 2007
